Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

Claim 20 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. In claim 20, the last line, it is unclear what is inclusive of the "inevitable impurities".

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 18-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yasuhara (US 6,221,179) in view of Saito (US 2004/0112484). Yasuhara discloses a product having an elongate ferrite grain diameter of less than 2 microns (abstract). The grain diameter is achieved at a forming step without refining but that notwithstanding; the forming and refining steps are product-by-process limitations. Yasuhara further discloses materials within the claimed range (column 5, second paragraph). While Yasuhara discusses the material being hardened it is silent with regards to a Vickers number. Saito also discloses an ultra fine grain ferrite material but, Saito discloses a Vickers hardness of 240. At the time the invention was made, it would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art to make the material in Yasuhara to have a Vickers hardness of over 200 as disclosed in Saito because Saito disclose a Vickers number of 240 to be advantageous. The raw material being in the form of a bar is irrelevant since the claims are limited to the final product so long as modified Yasuhara is capable of being in the bar it reads on the claims. Alternatively, the "bar or wire" could be interpreted broadly to incorporate any structure disclosed in modified Yasuhara.

Response to Remarks

Applicant's arguments in regards to Yasuhara are not fully understood. Applicant argues in regards to Yasuhara that "[t]here is no disclosure of a steel bar or wire having the same ultra fine ferrite grains as the steel bar or wire of Yasuhara". While confusing, it appears as though applicant is arguing that Yasuhara discloses a steel sheet whereas applicants disclose a steel bar or wire. In response, the claims only claim a formed product there is no requirement that the formed product is a bar or wire. The claimed bar or wire is only claimed as a raw material which, as noted in the above rejection, is largely irrelevant in article claims since it is only the final produce which is considered for patent. The claims nowhere require the final product to be a bar or wire much less a screw, bolt or rivet. Applicant is reminded that although the claims are interpreted in light of the specification, limitations from the specification are not read into the claims. See In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d 1181, 26 USPQ2d 1057 (Fed. Cir. 1993).

Applicant next argues Saito again only discloses a steel sheet to which no further response is believed necessary in light of the above response. Applicant however, further argues that Saito's effective date is June 17, 2004, after the effective date of the instant application. In response, the examiner disagrees because as prior art it is applicable based on its earliest publication date, regardless of language, which for the WIPO document as provided is Oct 3, 2002. It should be noted that the identification number "[43]" is the publication date.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
